

Ray Lancashire is a prominent grassroots community figure, local volunteer, and former independent politician based in the Queen's Park ward of Westminster, London.

His notable contributions, community roles, and background include:

Local Government & Community Action

- Queen's Park Community Council (QPCC): He served as an independent Community Councillor for the Queen's Park ward, acting as Vice-Chair of the Place Committee until he stood down.
- Air Pollution Pioneer: A resident of the Mozart Estate since childhood, he spearheaded Queen's Park's very first citizen science air pollution project. He actively managed the placement of monitoring tubes to challenge Westminster Council's high-traffic data and advocate for local air quality improvements.
- Crime Data Analysis: He works voluntarily with the Queen's Park Community Council to collate and map local police data on anti-social behaviour and violent offences to help steer community safety engagement.

Environmental Volunteer Work

- Friends of Queen's Park Gardens: He is a long-term volunteer gardener (since 2012) and serves on the management team to organize weekly community gardening sessions.
- Queen's Park Trust: He continues to serve the community as a General Board Member for the Queen's Park Trust.

Professional Profile

- Database Developer: Professionally, he is an experienced IT specialist and FileMaker Pro Developer working for the London-based company faCADe Ltd